

Let's introduce Fondazione Capellino starting with the ENEF criteria for membership

Irrevocable endowment and independence

The foundation is a separate legal entity. Its affairs are irrevocably and clearly separated from the personal affairs of the founder(s).

In accordance with the Statute of the Fondazione Capellino (published on our website), the endowment of the Fondazione is strictly separated from the founders.

This principle was also confirmed in the document issued by the Italian Tax Agency in 2029, when it authorised the donation of the company Almo Nature from Lorenzo and Pier Giovanni Capellino to the Fondazione itself.

This status is monitored by the Comitato di Sorveglianza della Fondazione (a fully independent body), the Tax Agency itself, and by the Prefetto (Government territorial office)

Responsible purpose-driven owner of an active business company In general, this refers to the holding the majority of shares or having a controlling influence in one or more active business companies.

Fondazione Capellino owns 100% of the shares and voting rights of Almo Nature Benefit S.p.A, as well as 100% of GFC S.r.I (the same donors of Almo Nature) but without the voting rights while Founder's are still alive.

This status is irreversible.The only circumstances in which the Fondazione may alter it is through the full right to sell the above-mentioned assets.

The Founder's choice is to concentrate in one person both the responsibility for generating profit and the responsibility for redistributing it. This condition creates an original, holistic mindset, in which owning and redistributing money generates distinctive philosophical approach. It fosters a healthy detachment in the decision-maker's mind between the administration of money and their personal relationship with it. Inevitably, in balanced and well-grounded individuals, this leads to detachment from possession in favour of the joy of serving ideas that advance universal goals.

Philanthropy

Engages in philanthropic activities financed through the income generated from active companies owned by the enterprise foundation and other investments.

The ultimate goal of Fondazione Capellino, as set out in its Statute, is the protection of the biosphere and biodiversity. Its intermediate goal is the careful management of its assets and patrimony to ensure the Foundation's continuity, independence, and the long-term commitments required by its projects, some of which extend over several decades.

Size

One of the requirements for membership in ENEF is that the total assets on the balance sheet must be EUR 1 billion or the equivalent amount in another currency. Over time, consideration should be given to lowering this threshold so that smaller Enterprise Foundations can also become members.

We are grateful to ENEF for having made an exception in our case regarding this equity/asset criterion, which Fondazione Capellino does not meet. We humbly acknowledge the human weakness of believing this exception was made in recognition of a particular quality expressed through the economic model we have developed, which we call the Reintegration Economy.

In simple terms, like all capitalist companies, we generate profit. However, once costs are covered, business continuity is ensured, and taxes are paid, all remaining profit is directed entirely towards the Fondazione's ultimate goal, rather than personal enrichment.
